BY WILLIAM LAMONT.

Bright and beautiful as May,
Are my Jennie's eyes,
Brilliant as the lingering ray
Of night's queen.
Like the flush of morning light,
In the orient seen,
Are her cheeks, with roses bright—
My own heart's queen!

Silken tresses fall around Neck of snowy white,
Music rings in every sound
Of her footsteps light;
And she sings with little art,
But merrily—
To the music of a heart,
From storm clouds free.

For the Hartford Herald.
BEAUTY AND HONOR.

By Del. Crow.

Beauty decks the visage,
But honor crowns the soul;
Beauty hides the real faults,
And mystifies the whole.

Honor, as a crystal stream,
Reflects the gems that lie
Within the soul, and softly beams
As stars within the sky.

Beauty is a fickle thing—
She leads the heart astray,
And many are in sorrow left,
Charmed by her glittering ray.

But Honor, spark of heavenly love,
Edifying gleams alone,
And now and then a wanderer
Will claim her for his own.

Beauty, mist of morning dew,
All pass away with youth;
But Honor grows, expands with age,
And blossoms into Truth.

Talked Himself to Death.
[Danbury News.]

He got off the morning train the other day and meandered up into the city, and stopped in front of a fine looking residence on Munson street.
He opened the gate, walked up to the door, and pulled the bell. In a moment it was opened and he stepped quickly inside. "You see," he said to the astonished girl, "I much prefer to do my talking upon the inside. It is so unpleasant to have the door closed in one's face when only half through."

He walked into the parlor, and the frightened girl went to inform her mistress that a sewing-machine man, or book peddler, had gained access to the house. The lady entered the room, and was greeted by the young man of cheek as follows:

"They call me a blessing—the ladies do—and I am, madam. I am a labor-saving benefactor to the whole sex.
I have a little invention which I am introducing—a perfect little gem. It is, madam, a small silver plated gilt point concern, which will allow you to wear the new style pull-back dress as easily as the breeches!"

"What do you mean sir?" demanded the lady.

"No longer madam, will you have to take your meals off from the mantelpiece. You can sit down as easily as in the old style barrel-shaped dresses. When you travel you won't have to lean up against the water-cooler, nor sit on the sharp edged seat arm.
The little invention which will thus facilitate your movements retails for only $1. It is called the semi-cylinder, double-duplex, non-conductor magical pull-back dress-fastener, and he opened his satchel and took out a half metal and half wood concern, and said,
"Only $1!" You place it under your skirts this (illustrating with his coat tail), and when you desire to sit down pull the right hand string, which you can have come out in your pocket, and lo! down you gently float until you reach the chair. If you desire to get into a carriage, drop the invention by pulling this string, put your foot on the spring, and you'll find yourself in the carriage in an instant!"

The lady called her husband to see the invention, and the agent explained its working to him. As the husband's eye fell upon the agent, a wicked thought passed through his brain, and he determined to be revenged.

"This is a new invention," began the agent, "to enable ladies to draw back their skirts much tighter than at present, and, at the same time, allow them to sit down. It is called the highfangled, drawback and squeezes together, new modus operandi. Ladies say I am a labor-saving benefactor, that I am an over-laster!"

"Wait!" shouted the husband, "please explain its workings again!"

The agent did so.

"Why, that would make a good hay hoister!"

"Yes," answered the agent, "but it is more particularly designed for ladies."

The husband sent for his daughter to examine the invention.

"This is a new unparalleled, upright, longitudinal, square-shaped perpendicular, two degrees south by four, west, extra strong, sling together and squash up, pull-back dress invention which I am selling for only $1. Ladies call me a—"

"Hold on!" shouted the husband and father, "until I call my other daughter," and he waltzed out of the room, and returned with the hired girl and the chambermaid.

"You see, ladies," began the agent;
'this is a flop-over and stand-up-up magical, tragical, two strings to the right one in center, invention for pulling back your skirts,' and he went on for half an hour, during which time the husband slipped over to the next house and induced the inmates to come over and hear the agent talk. He returned with six women and four children, just as the agent was winding up for the fourth time. Escorting one person into the room at a time, he had the agent to tell each one about the invention. He stationed a small boy out in the hall, with a lead pencil, who was instructed to make a mark on the wall every time the agent repeated his story. The stock he had brought in was exhausted about noon, when he sent a messenger around the ward to send in the neighbors, and the agent was kept telling his story without intermission until near midnight.

As the sun disappeared behind the western horizon, the agent began to show signs of fatigue, but the husband was as fresh as ever. Eleven minutes to 12 o'clock, the agent, who had just completed his yarn for the two hundred and sixteenth time, looked up gaping. A glass of water was thrown in his face, and the husband told the boy to run half a dozen more persons, for he thought he could finish the agent now in about an hour and a half.
The boy left to rouse up the neighborhood, to find half a dozen who had not yet heard the story of the 'invention.'
When he was absent, frequent stimulants had to be given to prevent the agent from fainting. Shortly the boy returned, saying that no more neighbors could be found, as they had all gone on an excursion. The husband hearing this was in despair, but he had the agent to repeat the story to him a couple of times, a couple of times to the boy and once to himself. When he had finished, he was so far exhausted as to be unable to sit up.

A fiendish smile stole across the features of the husband as he said:
'Young man, I have hoped for this moment. I have been haunted almost to death by agents. The last man that came along swindled me out of $2, and I then took a terrible oath I would be revenge upon the next man that attempted to seduce me. Now, then, that I have induced these persons, who have listened to your eloquence, to come in, that I might turn your own weapon against you. You have talked yourself to death. Thank heaven, I have succeeded in my revenge. You can live but a few moments longer, but before you die I pray you to repeat again that well known story.'

The agent braced himself up against the side of the room, a glass of water was given him, and he began:

"You see, I have a double-duplex—"

And he was dead.

The coroner was summoned, an inquest held, the jury returning a verdict that the deceased came to his death by too much circumlocution of the jaw, and they contributed their fees to the husband, and caused a diploma to be awarded him as a testimonial of the good he had done the public.

Any one now passing Munson street can see a sign hung on the front door of a fine mansion, which reads:
'AGENTS BEWARE.'

The other day a Vietsburg father, finding it necessary to reprove his son, gently said: "Don't stuff victuals into your mouth that way, my son; George Washington didn't eat after that fashion." The boy accepted the reproof without comment, and after pondering awhile, he remarked to himself; "And I don't believe George Washington licked his boy for finding a bottle of whisky in the shed when he was hunting after a horse-shoe, either."

"Henry, why don't you keep a supply of cloves in your pocket?" said an Albany young lady to her escort at the Opera House recently; "you wouldn't then have to run out after every act;
and I don't see why you are so awful fond of cloves anyhow."

FROM LOUISVILLE.

LOUISVILLE, Ky., Nov. 29.

EDITOR HERALD:—If A. B. H. finds so much to excite his wonder and ridicule in the quiet precincts of the free State of Grayson, where the good people with primeval habits, incorrupted by contact with the genteel (?), go about doing unto others &c., in a neighborly way, what would he say of the customs of a higher civilization where people ride in their fine carriages with liveried servants and boast of the intelligence and integrity of "Our people," the purity of the ballot box, the right of suffrage, that glorious boon vouchsafed to the free American citizen, a boon that cost blood, but now fostered for Althya lucre, what would he say of all this? What would a loyal subject of a well regulated Monarchy say or think of our institutions if he could drop into a crowd of freemen on the street corner and listen to one of them tell of the rascality of a prominent candidate, and how, if he by any means comes into power, the affairs of the city will suffer, detailing a long list of evils that will inevitably follow, urging them to look well to their dearest interests, and divesting their minds of all prejudice, go to the polls and exercise that sacred privilege bought with the blood of patriots and handed down to this generation in order that they might guard their liberties with jealous care, and then watch this same liberty-loving blood sucker go into the closet and arrange for the payment of a number of the unpurchasable freeman? Such an one would be apt to look upon our mode of government as a conundrum hard to solve, and so it is. Here is a great city of over one hundred thousand people, in a furor of excitement over the pending election, betting their money by the $10,000, and ready to fight if any man will tread on the tail of the coat.
It is demoralizing the whole city, and all things must give way before the pressure. If only the interests of the candidates and their immediate friends were at stake, we might expect a moderately fair election, but when it is known that thousands, and perhaps hundreds of thousands of dollars, are staked on the issue, it is reasonable to suppose that no means fair or foul will be left unused by either party to gain the privilege. If any of your readers want to put up a little, and would like to bet on the judgment of a disinterested spectator, let them bet on Baxter, because he is in the hands of good jockies, and they will win if there is any power in money.

N. B.—No back talk if you back this judgment and lose, but if any of your friends act on it and win, as they are almost sure to do, you can claim a share, Mr. Editor, as informant, and we'll divide.

I met Dr. W. J. Berry and Uncle Josh Render, from your county, in the city the other day, and they seemed to have enjoyed themselves hugely while here. The Dr. is one that goes to the last ditch and then kicks back. Quite a number of Ohio county folks were in the city last week, but I learned that they got scattered while storming the city, and some fell early in the action. Some were carried bleeding from the field, and one in particular, an old veteran, bandaged his wounds with a borrowed garment, and folding a sleeveless gown about him, silently stole away, while a few the Dr. and Uncle Josh among them, held out to the bitter end, and were overpowered but not conquered. The Dr. will soon go to Frankfort, I suppose, and if Miss Sallie don't watch him he will take up another coop of game cocks with him. For the information of any interested parties, I will state that good shirts can be bought for $1.50. Speaking of shirts, there was a mystery unearthed in the upper part of the city a day or two ago, which bids fair to equal the Nathan mystery of New York. While cleaning the house and moving furniture, a shirt saturated with blood was found behind an old bureau, and how it came there is the mystery. The inmates of the house claim to know nothing about it. The detectives can now have a bloody shirt case to work on at home.

I notice a complaint in the HERALD of week before last in regard to mail irregularities. I suppose the cause is owing to the fact that new agents have been placed on your road, and they require a little time to become acquainted with the distribution. One cannot get into a mail car and perform the duties of agent in an hour, or a day;

if he does moderately well in a month he will succeed admirably. The railway mail service is getting to be one of the biggest things in this country, all the mails now being distributed on the cars, each car being in fact a distributing P. O. A postal car or railway post-office distributes mails for route agents and offices, the route agent separating for his local offices.
The Louisville and Nashville R. P. O. is as the neck of a funnel through which all the mail from the North and East is poured into the South. It pours in through Cincinnati, Indianapolis, St. Louis, and comes to this round in a mass where three clerks attack the pile, and then papers and letters that have traveled together from New York or Boston must part company, and by the time the train arrives at Bowling Green, the entire mass is distributed, the papers put into tie sacks and the letters into lock pouches, and labeled to forty or fifty different route agents, besides the principal offices, such as New Orleans, Jackson, Mississippi, Shreveport, &c.
Coming North the order is reversed, all those different agents and post-offices in the South send their mail en masse to the R. P. O., where it is distributed and forwarded to the different lines and cities in the North and East, Such is railway mail service, hard work and study is required, and no drones can succeed.

FROM BEAVER DAM.

BEAVER DAM, Ky., Dec. 6.

We have been waiting for something of thrilling importance to occur, that we might have an interesting letter for the HERALD; but, sad to say it cometh not to our ears.

Rumor has given credence to the report that numerous marriages are to be solemnized this winter, but this is untrue, for the great encouraging movement through the whole country has converted man to the belief that one can live cheaper than two.

Drummers are becoming numerous, almost every train leaving from three to a dozen in our town; they are offering goods of every character at less than granger prices. They sell too cheap, but then the goods are far different from the quality they used to sell, it takes four dresses now to wear as long as one used to and more, but people don't think so.

Mrs. E. M. Miller, consort of W. S.
Miller, and daughter of Thomas O.
Austin, deceased, departed this life on last Thursday, after lingering many months with consumption. Many relatives and friends mourn her loss.

Mr. G. F. Mitchell and W. H.
Barnes, after an illness of eight and three weeks respectively, are convalescent.

Misses Lelia Addington, Mattie Berry and Belle Barnes were visiting our town last week, and we trust enjoyed their visit.

The long looked for lottery money has at last reached home, and is being rapidly disbursed by the commissioner.
The lucky ones, both male and female, shout for joy when they see the hundred dollar bills being counted out to them, for money is money these times.

Our friend, "Ali Ben Hamad" called on us the other day; he reports all well in Egypt, and darkness being dispelled.

Rev. E. M. Crow delivered a fine sermon at Goshen to an appreciative audience.

Business has been active during the past few weeks and still improving.

POINT PLEASANT.

PT. PLEASANT, Ky., Dec. 6.

EDITOR HERALD:—The grange and farmers of this community met some time since and formed a tobacco association, for the purpose of having their tobacco graded, priced, shipped and sold on their own account. The association first rented L. M. Patterson's large and well appointed tobacco house, situated at Point Pleasant, on Green river, for one year for the sum of $200.
They also elected H. J. C. Linley their agent, who agrees to pay rent, furnish hogheads, class prize, ship, sell, and pay over to each member of the association the proceeds of his tobacco for seventy-five cents per one hundred pounds. With the well known integrity of Mr. Linley, as well as his experience and skill as a tobaccoist, we may reasonably expect to realize all our tobacco will bring in the Louisville market.

LETTER FROM SPRING LICK.

SPRING LICK, Ky., Nov. 29.

The all-absorbing topic of conversation among us at this time is, tobacco.
As yet, no sales have been made of any material importance, but the prospects are favorable for a brisk trade in this article of production, in a very short time. It is supposed that the price will range from five to six dollars per 100 pounds. Messrs. Chick & Co., of this place, received one crop last week for which they paid six dollars a leaf, and four dollars for logs.

Messrs. A. G. Rowe & Bro. will start for Louisville about the 10th of next month for the purpose of purchasing an entire new stock of dry goods, groceries, and, in fact, everything usually kept in a first-class country store. Their new store is now completed except some inside painting, which they will have done this week.

Mr. Strasburger who has a saw mill near this place, has just returned from Louisville, whither he went a few days ago to make engagements for a lot of lumber. He reports trade dull in the lumber business, and prices for all sorts of lumber except walnut, at a low ebb. The latter he says is in very great demand, and a good article will command highly remunerative prices to shippers.

It is intimated that two young would-be horse thieves were caught on the rail road a short distance from this place not long ago, and thirty-nine lashes were well "laid on" their backs, after which, they were released and allowed to go on their way rejoicing.
We have been unable to ascertain the names of any of the parties.

Several car loads of lumber and hoop-poles were shipped from this place last week.

It is evident some ill-designing person attempted this morning to cause a wreck on the rail road by throwing huge rails, and old cross ties on the track in several places between here and Caneyville. It is to be hoped every effort will be made to catch the evil one, and that justice will be meted out to him.

THE OHIO COUNTY CONVENTION.

Met with Rock of Safety Lodge No.
14, I. O. of G. T., at Hamilton, Ky.,
Nov. 9th 1875.

The Convention was called to order by Bro. S. W. Roll, President. The first business was the election of officers.—Bro. Ben. Newton, President; C. McK. Hamilton, Vice-President;
Jno. M. Torrance, Secretary. The President then invited Bro. G. W.
Rain, P. G. W. C. T., to the chair, who appointed the several committees and started them to work. Bro. B. is a whole souled Good Templar and a worker.

The committee on credentials reported fourteen delegates, whose reports were favorable.

The committee on the state of the Order reported as follows: We find that several Lodges have gone down, but we believe there is enough, if they were rallied together, to re-organize every Lodge that has gone down in the county, so we must take courage and go to work and ask God to assist us and bless our efforts; and, if God is on our side, what need we care for the scoffs and sneers of the opposers of Temperance. We also recommend that the convention system be kept up, also that each Lodge will appoint a committee to visit the Lodges that have gone down, and build them up; we also recommend that the Chair appoint a County Deputy to see to that work. Bro. S. W.
Roll was appointed County Deputy,
and we hope to hear of good work.
Lodges that have gone down may expect a visit from Bro. Roll. Newton Lodge No. 410 was selected as the place of holding the next convention, and 11th and 12th of February, 1876, the time.

Our meeting was a very pleasant one.
Bro. Bain delivered a public lecture at night, which resulted in twelve names to Rock of Safety Lodge. Nine joined that night, and seven or eight since.
So our efforts were not in vain. We hope to see a goodly number at our next convention, as a good time is expected. JNO. M. TORRANCE, Sec.

LETTER FROM CROMWELL.

CROMWELL, Ky., Nov. 30.

The readers of the HERALD will perhaps expect some apology by me(?) for the late absence of my correspondence from that paper, but I am glad to say the fault is not mine. I have rather promptly filled my reports, and I was a little fearful that my last had "busted" the press, but have ascertained that it did not appear owing, as printers say, to a crowd of other matter, and others in the corps of correspondents, whose communications I was always glad to see, may know their reports were not published for similar reasons.

The bridges and roads about Cromwell have lately been put in passable condition, and I hear the city officers chanting among themselves that the streets shall be improved this week.

Mr. Tilford has been shipping hoop-poles for some time from this place, down the river.

Mrs. Daniel, daughter and son, have returned from Louisville.

Mr. Montague, of California, is visiting his brother, Judge Montague, of this place. He seems to be a pleasant gentleman, and can interest one highly with his descriptions of the "Golden State."

RETROSPECT.

BY VIOLA.

"Twenty years ago," mused an old maid, one cold winter evening, as she sat in the chimney corner with her knitting lying idly in her lap; her spectacles were pushed to her forehead, while she drew from the reticule at her side a huge red and black silk handkerchief and applied it to her eyes, and an old gray cat, her only companion, lay sleeping at her feet.

"Ah me!" she sighed. "Yes, just twenty years ago to-night—what changes have come over my life since then.
Bright visions of my youth have faded.
I am now what the world terms an old maid of forty. But can I allow myself to dwell upon the scenes of twenty years ago. To-night wounds that I deemed healed have broken afresh, and the scenes that I hoped buried have come vividly to my mind."

Oh, to bury my memory in the stream of Lethe, extracting from it all the painful recollections of other days.
Vain wisher I am; for the past can never be wholly buried in oblivion.
One glance of the face that I have striven to forget have ruined my feelings to night.

"Pussy," and she gently stroked the cat's head, "Pussy, my only companion, and truest friend, listen to the sad story of my youth."

"I had, as most every girl of sixteen has, a lover, and one on whom I bestowed the purest of human affection.
With him the world was an earthly Paradise; when separated, I dreamed and thought only of him. Thus four years sped by on golden wings. On my birth day, completing my twentieth year, he was to lead me to the altar."

"So implicit was my confidence that nothing would have shaken my trust. Ah! and she heaved another deep sigh, "little did I know the ter-giversation of human mind. Neither had I a guardian angel to whisper in my ear that I was laying my heart on so false an altar, had I, when the shock came, it would not have been so severe.
I was adorned on the evening set for my marriage in my wedding apparel, awaiting the coming of my then supposed future lord. But he never came!
Only a wee note of his illness reached me. The shock was indeed terrible—wounds were made in my heart that can never be healed. For years I dare not look on the face of him, but to-night the temptation was irresistible. I looked, and the past came rolling back like some great avalanche, almost consuming my being. Friends and relatives have departed to their far-off home, leaving me alone to mourn over my fate. The world calls me fastidious, cross and ugly. But, could they

"Lift the veil
From the hidden recesses of my soul,
They would find anguish there untold."

A handsome youth being questioned by a rather stylish lady as to his occupation, replied that he was "an adjuster of movable alphabets." He was simply a printer.

A young lady on answering her lover's letter, wrote thus: "I chewed the stamp all to thunder, for I knew you licked it."

A stranger kissed a La Crosse girl by mistake, and was then licked by her two brothers for being mistaken.
He then deliberately kissed her for being who she was, and was licked for being impudent.

A Way of His Own.

Judge McManama has a way of doing things entirely his own. A few days ago the trustees of the Cincinnati Southern Railroad were presented before the grand jury of Grant county for obstructing the turnpike road from Watson, to Williamstown, which they had purchased for $30,000, and were tearing up at their pleasure. The judge instructed the grand jury to indict. They deliberated for five days, when they declared they could see no ground for indictment.

"Mr. Clark, enter up a writ of each against these men for contempt of Court," shouted the Judge, and he discharged the panel from further service, affirmed the regular term of Court, called a special term for next day, had a special grand jury sworn, instructed them severely as to his requirement of them, wrote out the indictments, took them into the grand jury room, and made the foreman sign them and report them to the Court.

To one not versed in the law, this looks like a very high-handed way of transacting business.

The Cincinnati papers declare with the utmost confidence that the cars will be running through from Cincinnati to Chattanooga over their completed
"Southern Railroad" within less than

A London dispatch in the New York Herald says, that the Royal Geographical Society met again to honor Mr.
Stanley for his successful African exploration. Speakers declared there was nothing in the gift of the society too high for his reward, and he deserved a reception on his return like that accorded to Spaulk and Grant, in the old Burlington House, when they returned after the discovery of the Victoria Nyanza Lake.

A Cuban Joan of Arc commands a leads the insurgents in person, dressed in a riding habit, and mounted on a fine horse, and is as brave as a lion.

WEDNESDAY, DEC. 8, 1875.

OUR COUNTRY'S DANGER.

The most distressing suffering is the consequence of Turkey's horrible deviltry towards the Herzegovinian Christians, who are being butchered as many brutes, and their headless bodies left on the streets for dogs, or thrown into the rivers as food for fishes, and a Christian world stands by and permits this deed of horror perpetrated upon a people who profess the religion of Christ. As to our government, it is engaged in a work of wonderful condescension—that of butchering and annihilating the birth-right of the people, American liberty, and time is too precious to waste in deeds of mercy abroad. The administration, wrapped in its sordid selfishness, and crazed by its desire to plunge the country into a war with Spain to further the plans of Grants third term scheme, while the people are mystified, and their thoughts drawn from the real object of cunning villainy, will mature their plans, and the usurper again mount the throne for a third term, and then good bye to Constitutional liberty—though only the shadow of the original now remains—and the military dictator will trample the sacred document under his feet while he dons the insignia of royalty and flaunts his prerogative in the face of a deluded and cheated nation, and their eyes will be opened only to see the iron fetters firmly riveted by a servile army of the offscourings of all countries. Such has been the tendency of events since Grant's first term of office, and every year has shown his idea of military consolidation, until the brazen idol only awaits the maturity of his deep laid conspiracy to seat himself upon the ruins of a Republic, and amid the glitter of jewels and rascally nobility, look serenely down upon the wreck of a nation that once rejoiced in the proud title of Nature's nobleman.

GEN. BABCOCK AND CROOKED WHISKY.

Gen. Babcock, President Grant's right bower, is getting very uneasy about the connecting of his name with the St. Louis crooked whisky ring, and wants a military court appointed to whitewash him. This is calculated to confirm people in the opinion that he is guilty. If innocent, why not go to St. Louis and put himself up as a witness in the next trial which occurs on the 15th inst., or demand of the grand jury an investigation, a return of an indictment against him, or a failure to find such an indictment. This would show some sincerity, and would be in keeping with his solemn declaration of innocence. The telegrams between him and Joyce and others look very suspicious, and will be hard to explain away. In fact, it looks as though he was the head man of the ring.

XLIV CONGRESS.

The present Congress is composed of three hundred and ninety-six members. Seventy-four Senators and two hundred and ninety-two Representatives. In the senate there are forty-three Republicans, twenty-eight Democrats and two Independents, and one seat to be contested.

The House has one hundred and seventy-four Democrats, one hundred and seven Republicans, ten Independents, and one to be elected.

The nine Territories send one Delegate each, composed of three Democrats, four Republicans and two Independents.

There will be twenty-two contested seats in the House of Representatives—eighteen by Democrats and four by Republicans.

CONGRESSIONAL NEWS.

In the Democratic caucus held at Washington, D. C., on last Saturday night, the following nominations were made:

For Speaker—Hon. M. C. Kerr, of Indiana.

For Clerk—Hon. Matt. Adams, of Kentucky.

For Sergeant-at-Arms—John G. Thompson, of Ohio.

For Door-keeper—L. H. Fitzhugh, of Texas.

For Post-master—James Stuart, of Virginia.

For Chaplain—Rev. J. L. Townsend, of Washington.

A Democratic nomination is equivalent to an election, and we have no doubt but all these nominees have been elected ere this. This is the first Democratic speaker elected in eighteen years, James L. Orr, of South Carolina, being the last.

HON. CHAS. O'CONNOR, the great lawyer of New York, is still alive, but no hope for his recovery.

CROOKED WHISKY.

Chief Clerk Avery was found guilty at St. Louis on 2nd inst. One by one the ring are convicted and marched off to the Penitentiary. We guess it will be Babcock's time next, as the developments every day continue to throw suspicion upon him. On the same day Tate and Weiner were found guilty at Milwaukee.

A special to the Chicago Times, Dec. 1, connects ex-Senator Matt. H. Carpenter with the crooked. If we could have had a Bristow as Secretary years ago, millions of revenue that has been embezzled and stolen might have been applied to our national indebtedness, and our tax burthen diminished considerably.

CONGRESSIONAL NOMINATION.

The Democratic convention in the fourth Tennessee district nominated Hon. H. T. Riddle of Wilson county, to fill the vacancy caused by the death of Mr. Fite. The convention was held on the 3d inst.

There seems to be a fatality hanging over the successful candidate in this district. In the fall of 1874 Hon. J. M. Head was nominated by the Democracy and elected. He soon died, and at a special election Hon. Mr. Fite was elected, Mr. Riddle being one of his contestants for the Democratic nomination. Mr. Fite died and there were eight contestants before the convention that nominated Mr. Riddle. It seems that the fatality has no terror for the office seekers of the district. As a nomination is equivalent to an election, we will soon have a "Riddle" in Congress; but it remains to be seen whether any one there can solve this Riddle.

Our namesake, Judge Barrett of New York city, has shown himself to be a firm, sensible and fair judge, by his action in the Scannell murder trial. Scannell was acquitted of the murder of Donahue, upon the grounds of insanity, and Judge Barrett immediately ordered him to be taken and confined in the Auburn Asylum. Scannell's friends were not expecting anything of the kind, and his attorney, Mr. Beach, protested; but the judge said, as he had been acquitted of murder by the jury upon the grounds of insanity, he was an insane criminal.

There is hope for New York yet.

It seems that Judge Laird, of the Indiana district that embraces Bloomington, is after the order of our McManama. In the case of the State against Pete Wehrner for murder, he required the State to show which one of the counts they would try upon, and ruled out all the others. The jury were unable to agree, nine being for conviction. Judge Laird, on his own motion, sent the case to Lawrence county, on a change of venue. Prof. C. F. McNutt was aiding in the prosecution, and he told the Judge plainly that he was partial to the defence and unfriendly to the State, in all his rulings in the case.

A MILITARY commission have been appointed to white wash Babcock, but it will do no good. President Grant has said to Bristow, "Let no guilty man escape," and Bristow proposes to carry out this programme. Attorney General Pierpont has telegraphed to St. Louis, giving notice of the military court of inquiry, but directs that the civil court go on with its investigation. A special dispatch from Washington to the Courier-Journal says, the indictment against Babcock has been found and will be made public in a day or so.

"Boss" TWEEED has escaped from Ludlow street jail in New York, and no trace of him can be found. Warden Dunham took him to see his family and allowed him a private interview with his wife, and after waiting for some time he called for him to come out, but he was not there. It is reported that he left in a steamer. Sheriff Comer and Warden Dunham are liable to a fine of $1,000 and one year's imprisonment, each, for their neglect, and if Tweed is not forthcoming they will, no doubt, and ought to receive the punishment.

The Government, by the St. Louis whisky frauds, has been swindled to a fearful extent. Distillers, government officials, and agents were all together in this infamous traffic, and though some little thieves have been convicted, the greater, who sun themselves in close proximity to the White House, will doubtless escape. Such is American justice.—The big thieves swallow the little ones, and thus shield their own crime.

From California dispatches of the 2nd inst., we learn that the brig Lucy Ann, with lumber from Pungot sound, is stranded at San Buenaventura. She is a total wreck, the crew were saved.

The bark Atalanta has been lost on Destruction island, near where the Pacific foundered. Two of the crew were lost.

The Flemingsburg Democrat wants a boy—to play the "devil," we suppose.

As Christmas draws near, the little fellows wear smiles.

What say our people for a Christmas tree?

Sheriff Smith was selling things Monday.

Rev Mr. Swindler, of Calhoun, held services at this place Sunday.

Egg-nogg will be scarce in this place Christmas—the hens have been idle for some time.

Flemingsburg boasts of a man who is not fond of oysters, but can eat three cans at a sitting.

Capt. Sam. K. Cox is the happiest man in town. It's a girl, and was born Sunday morning.

On our first page will be found a brilliant little poem from that true poet, Wm. Lamont. It is a cluster of pearls sparkling with beauty.

Mr. J. E. Fogle, a member of the legal fraternity of this place, left Monday for Owensboro, to attend Circuit Court which is now in session in that city.

Save Money by Buying

Your new suit at the great clothing house of J. Winter & Co., cor. 3d and Market, Louisville.

Their clothing is first-class, and prices have been reduced.

A young couple married not far from here one day last week, but we will withhold their names until they have their first fight, and she sues for a divorce.

The Place to Get a Bargain

Is at the great Clothing House of J. Winter & Co., Louisville, Ky., cor. 3d and Market.

Prices have been reduced, and now is the time to buy.

When Buying Your New Suit

Do not forget that the old reliable house of J. Winter & Co., cor. 3d and Market, Louisville, have the largest stock in the city to select from, always give a good fit, and sell at reasonable prices.

Terrible Storm at Sea.

And there will be a terrible storm around here if those who owe me do not come up and pay me at once. I cannot furnish the sick with medicine free, as I have to pay cash for all drugs. I will be compelled to sue on all my notes and accounts if not paid at once. Z. WAYNE GRIFFIN.

Nov. 24th, 1875.

To all Whom It may Concern

My Dear Friends:

I have been indulgent for four years—I ask you now to come forward and settle your accounts, I cannot supply medicines for the sick, furnish my family with the necessities of life, and pay my debts without money. Hoping you will answer my first and last call, I remain, Yours,

T. J. PFEIFFER

Called Meeting.

A called meeting of the stockholders of the Ohio County Agricultural and Mechanical Fair Association will be held at the Court house in Hartford, on Saturday, the 18th day of December, 1875. ALL the stockholders are earnestly requested to be present, as business of vital importance will be presented for action.

J. W. BARNETT, Pres't.

S. K. Cox, Sec'y.

Nov. 30th 1876.

Notice.

I offer my farm for sale, containing one hundred acres, on Caney creek in Ohio county, eighteen miles East of Hartford, one-half mile of Ferguson's station and White Run Post Office, on the L. & P. R. R. Seventy-five acres of bottom land in cultivation, under good fence, good dwelling house, large barn, and all other out buildings necessary on a farm. There is a bank of coal within fifty yards of the house, where all the coal can be got necessary for the house at small cost.

M. Y. DAY.

Mr. Z. Wayne Griffin and family, after an absence of several weeks, returned home Friday, all being greatly improved in health.

On petition of L. J. Lyon to the County Court, the county judge issued him license last Monday to sell whisky by the drink. Its good on our part, for we anticipate some startling locals on the strength of it.

Bargains May be Found

In the Merchant Tailoring department of the old established house of J. Winter & Co., Louisville. Their stock embraces the finest variety in the city, and prices that will command your attention.

Last Saturday night the post-office at Rockport was broken into by some unknown person. There was nothing taken, at least the post-master, Mr. Benton, has missed nothing up to this time.

Mr. Strother J. Banks, from the wholesale house of Bainberger, Bloom & Co., was in town this week. He will now travel in the Green River section.

Mr. Wallace Gruelle, well known to journalists of this State, has accepted a position on the editorial staff of the Herald, a Louisville paper, and will start to his new field of labor next Monday.

Last Saturday we were shown a red fox skin which measured four feet eight inches. The fox was shot by Mr. Thomas Newcomb.

E. Small has just received from the East a magnificent invoice of goods for the Christmas holidays. The goddess of fashion herself would envy Mr. Small's taste in making selections for the ladies.

We are in receipt of the Lincoln, (Ill.) Times, edited and published by Wallace Nail & Bro. The editors are both young men, and were until a few years ago, boys of this place. We are pleased to exchange with such a new and spicy paper.

Mr. S. J. Banks, representing Bainberger, Bloom & Co., is again the agent for his house in the Green River section. His long service with this house, and a perfect knowledge of the business makes him to our merchants a welcome visitor.

We acknowledge partaking of a nice oyster supper at the Hartford House, one night last week. The proprietor, Mr. Lyon, is one of the most social gentlemen we have ever met, and as a proprietor of a public house, is unsurpassed by any in the Green River country.

We had the pleasure a few days since of dining with that true Prince of Landlords, L. J. Lyon, of the Hartford House. For a substantial and luxurious table, and polite and courteous attention, the Hartford House cannot be excelled in the Green River country.

Ohio county has not for several years been blessed with so bounteous a corn crop. We receive from all directions "plenty and to spare," and the farmers have, as a general thing, been willing to accept forty cents per bushel delivered, and we have heard of some selling at thirty-five cents.

We publish with pleasure a beautiful little gem from the timid pen of Miss Del. Crow. We would be pleased ever to give her a place within our constellation of newspaper brilliants, knowing she will beam with the same effulgence as, hereafter, when her pure soul enters that other starry cluster, where honor and truth alone is a passport of admittance.

A young gentleman called on a lady the other night, and thinking he had not made a favorable impression upon her, he said, "I am a put-in," and informed her that she would be arrested for indecent exposure if she did not leave the streets. The last seen of her was she splitting the mud in the direction of her home.

Mare and Dog Swap.

A Louisville sporting gentleman on a bird-hunting excursion to this county had his famous dogs so badly bitten by a bird-dog belonging to a gentleman of this place that he proposed to swap a blooded mare, costing $200, for the dog. The trade was closed, and the mare actually shipped and landed safely to her new owner in Hartford the other day. Who can say now that dogs are a nuisance? We intend to go into the dog-raising business. No more bread by the sweat of the brow for us. We hope some generous disposed person will deliver to us at least a dozen "setter" pups, and introduce a corresponding number of gentlemen who have blooded mares tetrad, and we'll be happy to jump a June bug in the absence of puddle duc.

Marriage Licenses.

The following is a list of the marriage licenses issued since our last report:

Ed. H. Johnson and Miss Lnell Bennett.

William H. Owen and Miss Katie Thomas.

M. Filmore York and Miss Susan Ann Reid.

Rosenberg & Bro., with that remarkable taste characteristic of men of first class business capacity, have filed their shelves and piled their counters with every thing that is beautiful, magnificent and durable, and the ladies will enjoy a pleasure in inspecting their well appointed establishment.

Judge James Stuart delivered a lecture on temperance at the courthouse last Wednesday night. A good crowd was present, and all seemed deeply interested. The Judge handled his topic with ability, and presented undeniable truths as to the great damage man's worst enemy, whisky is doing among the young men of the present day.

County Grange.

HARTFORD, Dec. 3, 1875.

To the Masters of Subordinate Granges of Ohio county.

By the solicitation of a number of the Masters of the county, I hereby call a meeting on Friday, 17th inst., at 10 o'clock, to be held at the Court House in Hartford, for the purpose of forming a County Grange of the Patrons of Husbandry.

A LITER, County Dep'y.

Accidental Shooting.

Jo. Taylor, a colored boy living in the upper end of town, accidentally shot himself through the hand Monday.

He was sitting on a fence with his hand over the muzzle of his shot gun, and in attempting to get off the hammer struck something and caused a discharge, the contents passing through his hand.

Attempted Assassination.

Last Friday night about 8 o'clock, there was an attempt to assassinate Mr. L. Fallon, of Rockport. From what we can learn, it was the intention of the assassin to shoot Mr. Fallon, and then rob the store which he had in charge. The shot was fired from the middle of the street, through the window. Mr. Fallon was standing by the show-case, five or six feet from the window, with a light burning close to him, and would undoubtedly have been killed, had not the bullet struck a pair of fire-tongs.

A Rare Bird.

One evening last week Mr. Charlie Griffin, of this place, shot a large bird—the name of which is unknown by any of our citizens who have seen it. It is of a beautiful white, with the exception of a few lead-colored specks upon its back and top of its wings. It was "booted" down to its toes. Its head was very much like that of an owl, but its eyes we cannot describe. It was very docile, and possessed extraordinary power in clamping; being almost impossible to remove it from a limb or anything it could clutch to. It measured from point to point of its wings five feet nine inches.

War in Africa.

Last Saturday a little row was aroused in the upper end of town among the Africans—John Phillips and Ellen Kahn, (the latter better known as "Sweet Ellen"), were the participants, in which Ellen came out "at the little end of the horn." In the fracas Ellen was almost entirely relieved of her wearing apparel, and appeared on the street in this condition to wear out a wit against Phillips, but the town marshal had a "put-in," and informed her that she would be arrested for indecent exposure if she did not leave the streets. The last seen of her was she splitting the mud in the direction of her home.

Transfers of Real Estate.

The following transfers of real estate have been lodged for record since our last report, viz:

Fredrica Martin's Heirs, deed of division by all his heirs;

Charles L. Smith, to Henry Smith, 91 acres on Rough creek, $5000;

Mary A. Benhett to John C. Westfield, interest in Joseph A. Nelson tract of land on Panther creek, $297.75.

James S. Ranney to S. P. Ranney, 110 acres on Indian camp, $200.

James S. Ranney to C. W. Ranney, 106 acres on Indian camp, $200.

James S. Shields to N. C. Daniel, 65 acres on Indian Camp, $1300.

Harriet F. Tishewer to George M. Patterson, 19 acres on Regaine creek, $361.25.

A Heavy Hail Storm.

A terrific storm of rain and hail passed over Hartford on Monday night. Torrents of rain fell, accompanied by vast quantities of hail. Streets were flooded, having the appearance of miniature rivers, and each man's door presented the novel sight of an ice merchant's sign. Little darlings scrambled out of bed to play marbles with the bright pebbles from heaven, until the icy chillness of their fingers, settled on their stomachs, and sent up their voices in loud admiration of the beautiful "hails" sent them by the angels, and copious draughts of catnip tea and paragonic was necessary to induce the juvenile devotees to forget their pleasures indreams.

A Slight Mistake.

An ingenious young lady of this place has invented a new kind of parlor ornament in the way of a swinging basket. It is very frizzly, and one not knowing about such things, to see it at a distance would have but little idea of what it was. 'So one evening' last week an old gentleman from the country was passing a house in which one of these baskets were hanging in the window, and honestly mistook it for a frizzly rooster, of the game stock, perched in the window. As he passed by he remarked to his companion: "I have often heard of sporting men engaging in cock-fighting, but I never expected to see the sport become so popular as for private families to keep one sitting in the window for a sign." He wondered what town people would be at next and passed on.

The Hog Prospect.

As slaughtering time approaches, a great deal of interest is manifested as to the quantity to be slaughtered. We have taken it upon ourselves to make inquiry, and find that there are not so many penned this year as last, but still nearly every farmer has some, and have them in better condition than they were at killing time last season. It is true, a great many have died with cholera, but we believe a sufficient quantity have been left for home consumption. We have noticed for the last few days wagons bringing them to market, and were sold at much more reasonable prices than we expected, which goes clearly to prove that they are not so scarce as were believed a short time back. Ohio county has raised a good crop of corn this year, and the hogs left for pork have been more substantially fed than they were last season. We need say no more on this subject, but believe we will be blessed with "hog and hominy."

The Broadway Baptist Church, of Louisville, was damaged by fire one day last week, to the amount of $25,000, but what we are glad to learn was covered by insurance. Steps have been taken to repair it at once. This church has been unfortunate. A defect in the walls caused them to have to rebuild it before it was fairly finished.

Socials.

The young ladies and gentlemen will meet at the residence of Mrs. Fannie Hardwick to-morrow evening. They are requested to call early. They are few, indeed, who do not love social enjoyment, consequently the married ladies and gentlemen are cordially extended an invitation to be present. We understand these meetings will be weekly. The young people extend their thanks to Mrs. Hardwick for her kindness in contributing to their enjoyment.

No! For Christmas Tricks.

Messrs. Wells & Williams have just received a nice assortment of toys, fire works, fancy candies, &c., for Christmas. Also just received a splendid assortment of heavy groceries, embracing N. O. sugar and molasses of the new crop, all at reduced prices. Call and examine.

The reformers are at work in Henderson, Ky. They have arranged to save $3,500, by reducing the salaries of the municipal officers. Well done for Henderson. Let other towns and cities follow her noble example.

FROM LOUISVILLE.

Before this letter appears the great agony will be over. I mean, of course, the city election. This has been one of the highest affairs that has occupied the attention of the people since the city of Louisville was incorporated, and it serves to demonstrate beyond a doubt—if any person who is endowed with reason had any doubts—that municipal elections in particular, as well as elections in general, are a farce. The Commercial of this morning says: "If the tax-payers of Louisville desire to see the gentlemen who rule the city, they should not fail to visit Sixth and Jefferson streets to-morrow morning. The boys will be there."

This sounds ironical, and was, perhaps, written in that spirit, but it is stating a fact; the rulers of the city will be assembled at the time and place specified,

AGRICULTURAL.

Farming a Profession.
Farming is a profession, and a most polished profession at that. No other profession has such co-workers as his.

Every farmer is practically a chemist, making and unmaking, composing and decomposing material things in a laboratory and on a scale that strips the manipulator of crucibles of his honors.

Assisted by the Great Architect, the farmer, on the floor of his laboratory, mother earth, plants the tiniest seed, which through chemical action germinates and sends forth a small bud that by accretions from surrounding matter is formed into the great tree. Or by changing the elements of the earth through skillful chemical fertilization, he produces in astonishing perfection, all the cereals and fruits needed for man's sustenance. Another change and the cereals and grasses of the field are changed, through chemical action, into the most luscious of meats and the most nourishing milk to gratify man's appetite. Again, he converts the grain and the grass into wool, or the elements of the earth and air into cotton or flax wherewith to clothe the nakedness of the human family, and protect them from the inclemency of the roughest climate.

Truly, the farmer is the greatest of practical chemists, whose laboratory is never closed and whose great teacher, Nature, stands ever ready to lend a helping hand in all his experiments and practical works, and tho' his pretensions are humble, his accomplishments are great.

As it is with chemistry, so it is with all the natural sciences. No man is more closely and practically allied than the agriculturist with botany, or the study of plants, astronomy, or the study of the atmosphere; the rains and the seasons; political economy, or the study of the laws he is forced to obey; geology, or the study of the earth's surface; in short, all sciences; and no other calling teaches a man the practical use of so many arts, or so thoroughly the philosophy of their application. Could our farming community but fully understand the rank where nature places them, and the extensive fields she spreads before every tiller of the soil for scientific experiment and research, then indeed would we see this industry at once placed at the head of all the professions, as the most notable, the most attractive, the most useful, and the most humanizing in its influences of all sciences on the earth, and the followers of the plow would rank above many of the idle drones who now fill the chairs of professorships or are unequipped in high-priced pulpits and medical colleges subsisting on the workman's labor.

Soil tillage is of all, in practice, 'universal science,' including within its embrace every other, and numbering among its followers nature's grandest nobility, whose destiny it is to give to the world universal liberty and universal justice—then will they be recognized as the professors of all sciences and philanthropy.—National Granger.

Buying Fruit Trees of Peddlers.
Certain things, one would suppose, would be generally understood. One would think that no intelligent man would need further caution against buying articles of which he is not a judge, from travelling men of whom he knows nothing, and from whom he can have no redress for frauds. For many years agricultural papers have cautioned farmers against buying fruit trees, vines, etc., from irresponsible peddlers or agents, and yet it seems that thousands continue this practice, and are often seriously imposed upon.

We do not denounce all tree peddlers or travelling agents. Many of them are honest men representing well-established and reputable nurseries, but common business prudence and good common sense suggests that it is unwise and unsafe to buy of men whose character the purchaser knows nothing, and whose word is the only guarantee that the trees delivered are true to name, and that they are as represented in quality. All over the country there are responsible nurserymen, able and anxious to supply trees to those needing them, and generally able to supply those best adapted to the locality, and at reasonable rates. Nothing is gained in patronizing strangers in preference to these nurserymen, and often much is lost. Other things being equal, the nearest nursery is the best place at which to purchase trees.—Western Rural.

The weather for some time past has been unfavorable to the wheat crop.

Fall Pigs.

Pigs that come in the fall months, especially the latter ones, are unprofitable stock. In the first place, they are in the way of the fattening hogs, and from their inability to 'stand from under,' are trampled under foot, have every disadvantage to contend against, and wear a dwarfish appearance from which they never recover. Besides, they generally weigh less than any hogs in the fattening pen. Take early spring pigs, and in addition to their regular allowance, give them the same quantity as that consumed by pigs coming four or five months earlier, and they will make more and better pork, and not be chargeable with one-fourth the trouble of their seniors. Perhaps the most profitable use that could be made of them would be as roasters, or to feed them high through the winter and sell them to the butcher in the spring when pork is scarce. But for the most profit, always take spring pigs, and feed them plenty of milk, meal and clover through the summer time, and if they are a good breed they can be made to weigh at eight months old, or at killing time, from two hundred to two hundred and fifty pounds, and sometimes more, which is as much as the generality of hogs from twelve to fifteen months old weigh.

When well fed spring pigs will gain from one to two and a half pounds a day, and be found much the cheapest pork the farmer can raise. To make them attain their greatest weight, however, at eight months old, they not only require the best of varied food, but plenty of skimmed milk to begin with, but also must be one of the best breeds—no 'land pike' need be so fed with the expectation weighing down any such figures. Nor should the mother sow be any thing but thrifty and well kept through the year. The best breeds will deteriorate by neglect or short feeding, and the pigs of a sow that has been half fed during gestation will be puny and slow growing, however plenty the subsequent feed may be.

Keeping Sweet Potatoes.

The keeping of the sweet potato is a much more simple thing than many imagine. They must be stored where the temperature is uniform, not less than 45° nor more than 70°, Fahrenheit; care should also be had not to store in too great bulk as that will cause heating, which will destroy the whole in a short time. This is the key to the whole subject, and any method of procedure that will fulfill the above conditions, will prove successful. I cannot go into details for all are not situated alike, and what would be proper and convenient for one to do, would not be so with another differently situated. Persons wishing to prolong the season of sweet potato eating as long as possible, will find the following a good plan: Take sound potatoes and pack in boxes or barrels, packing with some material that will readily fill the interstices, as saw dust, dry sand, road dust, bran or chaff, and set in a warm place where there is a fire, as the living room or kitchen. Sweet potatoes can be thus kept readily past the holidays, and sometimes even until spring.—Columbian Rural World.

Potatoes for Horses.

Nearly every winter, when I have my horses up in stable I feed potatoes to them. I once came near losing a very valuable horse from feeding him dry hay and oats with nothing to moisten. I have never believed in dosing a horse with medicine, but something is actually necessary to keep a horse in the right condition. Many use powders but potatoes are better, and safer, and cheaper if fed judiciously. If those who are not in the habit of feeding potatoes to horses will try them, they will be astonished at the result. I have known a horse changed from a lazy, dumpish animal to a quick, active, headstrong animal, in a few days, by simply adding two quarts of potatoes to his feed daily. If very much clear corn meal is fed, they do not need so many potatoes. Too many potatoes are weak, and so are too many apples. When I was a lad, I was away from home at school one winter, and I had the care of one horse, one yoke of oxen and one cow, every one of which I had to card or curry every day. The horse had three pails of water, four quarts of oats, two quarts of corn extra every day he worked, and a stronger and more active horse of his inches I have never yet seen.—Country Gentleman.

Young Stock.

All young stock, colts, calves and lambs, should have meal or grain the first winter, for this is the time to lay the foundation for future excellence and profit. For calves and lambs there is no feed that pays better than shorts and bran—we mean the old-fashioned shorts or middlings—with this we may profitably mix shelled corn for calves, and oats for lambs. For colts nothing can take the place of oats.

Improving Common Sheep.

A flock of sheep was exhibited by Mr. C. B. Gilman, at the fair of the New England Agricultural Society at Portland, Me., September, 1899, as 'Improved Native Sheep,' and which the owner stated had been brought to their present state of perfection by a most thorough and continued course of selection and breeding, not only by himself, but by his father and others at an early period. These sheep were of large size, symmetrical, and apparently very robust and healthy, comparing favorably with any one of the many flocks on the ground. The wool was very white, fine and even, extending well down the legs, around the face and head and covering the belly, and resembling in their features the best type of Merino. It is stated that originally selections were made of the best sheep from different flocks with reference not only to quality of wool, but also size, shape, etc., and subsequent breeding was followed by careful selection of such as exhibited the most marked improvement with least defects, excluding all others.

The first point aimed at was perfecting as far as possible the staple, working out any appearance of hairy coats or coarse spots of wool, covering the whole body with wool of good quality, a labor of years during which time the symmetry of form, size and constitution were not neglected. There was, as a matter of course, a necessity for more than the usual care in selecting and breeding, requiring care and good breeding, guarding against ill effects by division of the flock, selecting the stock from the best of either, and breeding in turn from the best selections of these mingled strains.

The flock exhibited were notably uniform, good size, covered with fleeces which though not so fine as the best Merinos, were of excellent quality, white and clear, free from the 'finish' for which many fine wool sheep have heretofore been noted, and a wool every way adapted to the wants of the farmer's household, as well as the American manufacturers. Their uniform size made them nearly, if not quite, as valuable for mutton as the Leicester or Cotswold, their weight falling little if any short of these valuable breeds. They were especially noted and commented at the time as good examples of what may be accomplished in the improvement of common sheep, being a flock of which any shepherd may be proud.—Rural New Yorker.

Working Barren Cows.

An experienced Kentucky breeder, Mr. Vaumeter gives the result of his treatment of cows that had been deemed hopelessly barren.—This specific is a remedy for barrenness in work. At the famous New York Mills herd sale he purchased for a song—$100—the 3d Duchess of Thorndale, then deemed hopelessly barren, as she had not produced a calf for three years. His mode of management is simply to reduce the flesh without producing inflammation. Starving the animal he thinks injurious, and adopts the plan of giving severe exercise with only moderate feeding. In most cases he works the supposed barren cow under the yoke. In the case of the 3d Duchess of Thorndale, he had her led or ridden four miles daily, and fed on a limited quantity of hay and fodder. She is now with calf.

In many of the corn growing States there is this year, a good deal of corn that is not perfectly matured.

The total corn crop of the State of Illinois is estimated for the present year at the enormous amount of 300,000,000 bushels.

The value of the surplus of the corn crop of 1875, and which appears in various forms of created wealth, at no less than $500,000,000.

Good farmers will only winter over a few sows for breeding, with, perhaps some Fall pigs—the latter should be pushed for the Spring markets, and comfortable quarters provided for all.

There is a cow in Carrollton, Ill., over twenty years old, which gives six gallons of milk per day, and which has not had a calf for six years.

Take any dozen young apple trees in the sections where the apple-borer is abundant, and allow a portion to be choked with weeds and the remainder well cultivated, and then watch the result. From our own experience, we believe that the chances are nine to one in favor of those cultivated being exempt from the pest.

A Clermont county, Ohio, farmer says: 'My experience is that a hog that has been previously highly fed on corn does not do well on clover.'

Always save the earliest and the best seed for your own use. By so doing for years the quality may be greatly improved.

HARPER'S MAGAZINE

ILLUSTRATED.

Notices of the Press.

The ever increasing circulation of this excellent monthly proves its continued adaptation to popular desire and needs. Indeed, when we think into how many homes it penetrates every month, we must consider it of enormous value to the public mind, for its vast popularity has been won by appeal to simple principles of common sense.—Boston Globe.

The character which this Magazine possesses for variety, enterprise, critical wealth, and literary culture that has kept pace with it, it has not led the times, should cause its competitors to regard it with justifiable complacency. It is an outlet for the great claims upon the public gratitude. The Magazine has long good, and not evil, all the days of its life.—Brooklyn Eagle.

ION OF AMERICAN ART TASTE

PROSPECTUS FOR 1875—MONTHLY YEAR.

THE ALDINE

THE ART JOURNAL OF AMERICA,

ISSUED MONTHLY.

A MAGNIFICENT CONCEPTION WONDERFULLY CARRIED OUT.

The necessity of a popular medium for the representation of the productions of our great artists has always been recognized, and many attempts have been made to meet the want. The successive failures which have invariably followed each attempt in this country to establish an art journal, did not prove the indifference of the people of America to the claims of high art. So soon as a proper appreciation of the want and an ability to meet it were shown, the public at once rallied with enthusiasm to its support, and the result was a great artistic and commercial triumph—THE ALDINE.

The Aldine while issued with all the regularity, has none of the temporary or hastily conceived characteristics of ordinary periodicals. It is an elegant miscellany of character, light, and graceful literature, and a collection of pictures, the rarest collection of artistic skill, in black and white. Although each succeeding number affords a fresh pleasure to its friends, the real value and beauty of The Aldine is a unique and original conception—alone and unapproached—absolutely without competition in price or character. The possession of a complete set of the Aldine is a mark of refinement, and one cannot duplicate the quality of the paper and engravings in any other shape or number of volumes, for ten times the cost, and then, there is the chronic disease of the Aldine.

The national feature of The Aldine must be taken in no narrow sense. True art is cosmopolitan. While The Aldine is a strictly American institution, it does not confine itself to the production of native art. Its mission is to cultivate a broad and appreciative art taste, one that will discriminate on grounds of intrinsic merit. Thus, while pleading before the patronage of The Aldine, as a leading and artistic production of the most noted American artists, attention will always be given to specimens from foreign masters, giving subscribers all the pleasure and instruction obtainable from home or foreign sources.

The artistic illustration of American scenery original with The Aldine is an important feature, and its magnificent plates, which are more appropriate to the satisfactory treatment of details than can be afforded by any interior page. The judicious interposition of landscapes, marine, figure and animal subjects, retains an unabated interest, impossible where the scope of the work confines the artist too closely to a single style of subject. The literature of The Aldine is a light and graceful accompaniment, worthy of the artistic features, with only such technical discussions as do not interfere with the popular interest of the work.

PREMIUM FOR 1875.

Every subscriber for 1875 will receive a beautiful portrait, in oil colors, of the same noble dog whose picture in a former issue attracted so much attention.

"Man's Unselfish Friend"

will be welcome to every home. Everybody loves such a dog, and the portrait is considered so true to life, that it seems the veritable presence of the animal before the eye. The Rev. T. D. Witt Talmage tells that his own Newfoundland dog (the best in Brooklyn) barked at it. Although so natural, as one who sees this premium chromo will have the slightest fear of being bitten.

Besides the chromo every advance subscriber to The Aldine for 1875 is constituted a member and entitled to the privileges of

THE ALDINE ART UNION.

The Union owns the original of all The Aldine pictures, which with other paintings and engravings, are to be distributed among the members. To every advance subscriber of $5.00 or more, 25 different pieces, valued at over $2,500, are distributed as soon as the series is full, and the awards of each series are made, are to be published in the next succeeding issue of The Aldine. This feature only applies to subscribers who pay for one year in advance. Full particulars in circular sent on application including a stamp.

TERMS:

One Subscription, entitling to The Aldine one year, the Chromo, and the Art Union.

Six Dollars per annum, In Advance.

(No charge for postage.)

Specimen copies of The Aldine, 50 cents.

The Aldine will hereafter be obtainable only by subscription. There will be no reduced or club rates; each for subscriptions must be sent the publishers direct or handed to the local canvassers, without responsibility to the publisher, excepting the return of the original given, bearing the fac simile signature of JAS. SUTTON, President.
